History Hogra:

After the end of World War II, the Netherlands emerged battered from the battle. In the early 1950's, Mr. W.A. Hoek an increasing demand arose in the need for transport. Mr. van Hoek, however, to the required capital. When he came into contact with Ra. In 1954, the production of the first copies started in a former milk factory in Ra. The Hogra factory was a typical assembly factory. All necessary parts, with the exception of the chassis, spring packages and sheet metal of the Hogra was made in the Netherlands. At the moment, the finishing touches are being put on a book that will be entirely dedicated to the Hogra. An important part of the input for this book comes from the former owner, who has written a book about the Hogra.

This Hogra, Type: H7-P6 in 4x4 version is the only surviving example in the world. In the 50s and 60s, the former owner's company drove 3 Hogra's and transported. Out of nostalgia for this forgotten truck brand that has existed less than 10 years. At a later stage, 2 more Hogra's were purchased, 1 of which is currently in the collection of the former owner.
